"slipped one over" on the champion. Invariably the champion is considered invincible until some little stranger comes along and pops him one on the right spot. This has happened so often that we are almost getting the habit of expecting a champion to flop. But if you go back over the ring records you may notice that champions don't flop, usually, until they are old, or fat, or weakened by living in luxury to which they were hampionship. What could be finer? had all expected, although it was by no means certain that Ouimet would get away with young Jones. Bobby's golf was not as good yesterday as it had been. He got a poor start and this left him an awful lot to do, as catching Francis Oulmet when he gets a good running start is not the easiest thing in the world. In fac' Culmet gave Bobby no chance to vertake him after the morning round. Bob fought as only he knows how to fight, but the Boston stage with a lead of two holes, kept this margin between them. After halving several holes it was a cinch that one the other would crack.

or the other would crack.

If Francis gave way Bobby would have been encouraged to go on and get the lead, but as he was the first to slip it meant a widening of the gap still further. The missed put on the seventh in the afternoon was the beginning of the end, and Francis soon increased it to a 6 and 5 victory.

The driving of this pair was very close. When it was wet in the morn-ing young Jones had the edge or int of his long carry. Oulme drives a ball that has more roll to it, and he began to get a little further than Jones. There was fitte to course from in the approaching, but Outmet outputted the Atlanta lad and this told the story. Time after time Jones had an advantage only to lose it on the green when Outmet ran down a long putt.

I'am still of the opinion that Jones has a fine game. He did nething yesterday that would lead me to beleve that he is not a good match play-er. He made mistakes, but Ouimet's work against him was of such high class that Bobby simply had to piak second fiddle. He will win the cham-plonship some day, I am sure.
